new position immediately, but will remain Oglethorpe president until a successor has been named.

Formerly president of Coker College in Hartsville, South Carolina, Dr. Agnew has worked with educational institutions throughout the South and in a variety of capacities with the Southern Association.

During his six years at Oglethorpe, the college has tripled its enrollment, improved the physical plant, increased faculty salaries and benefits, completed a comprehensive self-study, developed an overall plan for development, increased alumni support tenfold, improved the quality of the school's offering by continuous restudy of the curricular offerings.

In speaking of Oglethorpe, Dr. Agnew states: "This is a fine college, with a very competent faculty, a wise vice-president in Dr. George Seward, an unusual and effective curriculum, a high quality student body, a growing alumni support, a Board of Trustees with increasing sense of responsibility. I have every confidence in its future, and pledge whatever support I may be able to give. I am glad that I can continue to live in the Oglethorpe community and I will watch the inevitable progress of the college with great personal interest".

Dr. Donald C. Agnew, president of Oglethorpe University, has resigned his office to accept a newly created position with the Southern Association of Colleges and Schools. Dr. Agnew will be the director of a multi-million dollar project to improve Negro education.

The association will receive grants from a number of national foundations to carry out the educational effort.

It envisions the establishment of a number of "centers" in the Southeastern states. These centers would work at all levels of education, from elementary schools to graduate studies.

Dr. Agnew will begin work in his

Mr. Hanson Receives Grant

Duane F. Hanson, Head of the Art Department of Oglethorpe University and an Atlanta sculptor, has just received a $2,000 grant by a Harvard University trust fund as financial assistance in the experimental use of synthetic resins and other space-age materials.

The trustee of the Ella Lyman Cabot Trust, Inc. awarded the grant to Hanson who has completed several reliefs for buildings in Atlanta some of which are the Tech Motel, Oglethorpe University Field House and the Lovett School. He is currently working on several new works to be erected in this area soon.

Hanson received his training in sculpture from Cranbrook Academy of Art and spent seven years teaching and exhibiting in Germany before coming to Atlanta in 1960.

"These materials seem to symbolize this age of the cosmonaut, interplanetary missiles and atomic energy," says Hanson. I also believe that since sculpture is by tradition a public art, its proper place should be integrated with architecture or placed in relationship to buildings or the landscapes. Sculpture

James M. Stafford, Jr., ('24) has been awarded the 1963 Advertising Federation of America-Printers' Ink Silver Medal Award by the Advertising Round Table of Kansas City. The annual award, administered by AFA and Printer's Ink, is presented "for outstanding contributions to the advertising industry."

Stafford was a member of the advertising department of Georgia Power Company for 21 years, following his graduation from the Harvard Business School in 1925. He has served as director of advertising and publicity for Kansas City Power & Light Company since December, 1946, and was named to the newly-created position of director of public information in August of last year.

He has been as active in various Kansas City community affairs as he was in Atlanta before his move to Kansas City. He received the 1961 Aviation Man of the Year Award from the Chamber of Commerce for his work in promotion of local aviation. Stafford is a past president of the Kansas City Press Club and of the Public Relations Society and a third-term member of the board of governors of the Advertising and Sales Executives Club. He served as public relations chairman for the 1963 Heart of America United Fund Campaign.

ture has a great future in America wherever building is going on."

Mr. Hanson is married to the former Janice Roche who was an opera star in Europe. They have three children and reside at 2375 Woodleaf Lane, Decatur, Georgia.

Founded in 1882 by 65 graduates of 8 colleges and universities, the AAUW's purpose was to increase educational opportunities for women and to enlarge the fields where these women could put their training to use. Today with over 155,000 members and 1500 branches in 50 states, the District of Columbia, and Guam they still pursue their original purpose. Because of their number and work they speak representatively for the American woman university or college graduate.

AAUW's Fellowship program is designed to give financial aid to women, outstanding in their field, who wish to do research. The applicant must hold the doctorate or be an established, recognized scholar in her field. There are forty-six fellowships ranging in value from three to five thousand dollars per year for American women. There is also a number of international fellowships open to women of other countries who wish to study or do research in the United States.

The AAUW Educational Foundation sponsors a College Faculty Program which is designed to give monetary assistance to college graduates who want to return to school to prepare for teaching on the college level. The applicant must be at least thirty-five years of age and hold a bachelor's degree. The program is limited to residents of: Alabama, Florida, Georgia, Kentucky, Louisiana, Mississippi, North Carolina, South Carolina, Tennessee, Texas and Virginia.

The roster of women holding advanced degrees in a service to locate women for positions in teaching, research, administration and in higher education. It is a central intelligence agency of qualified women in numerous fields of endeavor. The roster offers a wider field of qualified personnel than individual and sectional agencies or placement services.

Realizing that learning and understanding should continue to grow after a woman has left college, the AAUW has developed a study-action program for 1963-64. The topics under study are: Bridging the Gap Between Science and the Layman, The American Family in a Changing World, Occident and Orient, and Expectations for Education.

The President's Corner

Education is a responsibility requiring that the individual be aware. Knowledge of legislation to be proposed and voted on is a duty of a good citizen. The AAUW at the national convention develops a legislative program which they support and closely watch the progress of throughout the year.

Each branch develops its own program along the lines drawn by the National organization. The four primary areas of interest covered are: Community Problems, World Problems, Cultural Interest, and Education. In addition to these activities local AAUW groups support qualified women candidates and support local legislation that furthers the aims of the AAUW.

Jim Holliday '49 President

On behalf of the Alumni we extend our gratitude of Dr. Donald Agnew for his outstanding work at Oglethorpe Univ. Under his leadership our school now has the largest student body in her history — over 600 with an expected 800 in the near future. If current plans become reality we should soon see ground broken for even further expansion. Our best wishes go with this most capable leader.

Where does Oglethorpe Univ. stand? What is her future? This affects each of us. It has been stated that our future is not a question of what happened to us yesterday but where we are heading today. This applies directly to our school and the answers are not always kind. One of our major problems lies with the alumni. There are far too many that can contribute to her success and don't. It has been heartening to see the increase in the number of alumni pitching in with his efforts — yet, Oglethorpe needs the help of those holding back. Our Alumni Fund Drive for 1963-'64 has approximately 4 mos. to go. To date it looks as if we may reach our goal and to those of you that have sent in your contribution our many thanks. Everyone connected with your Association realizes the headaches connected with asking for money but these are overcome with the realization that its a must.

Results of all our endeavors will be announced at the Annual Alumni meeting May 15th and 16th. Why not plan now to attend and see first hand what your school and school friends are doing?

Mrs. Winn '45 Honored

Mrs. Mack (Annette Segars) Winn '45 has had the honor of having the name of the elementary school in Lithia Springs, Georgia renamed in her honor. It is now the Annette Winn Elementary School. Mrs. Winn has been principal of the school since 1946.

She was the Douglas County Teacher of the Year in 1955, a member of ADK and president of the local unit of the Georgia Education Association, 1962-63.

$5,000 Gift to University

A gift of $5,000 to the endowment funds of the college has been announced recently. The gift is from the Charles A. Frueauff Foundation of New York.

Fund Drive Report

Your "Forward Oglethorpe Fund" has been moving at a rather slow pace. Our progress is above anything that we have ever done to date, but this is far from our established goal. It is our hope that by Alumni Day, May 15-16th, we can report that the 1963-64 Fund drive ended on schedule exceeding the goal. This can only be accomplished if all our alumni who have not renewed their subscriptions to Oglethorpe and those who have never contributed, do so in the near future!

If Oglethorpe University is to maintain its present high standards and the status among the top institutions of higher learning, then we — the alumni — must take a more active financial interest in its operation. In 1963, we brought together many of the former senior class presidents. It was gratifying to see their response to the challenge that we face in raising money for Oglethorpe. This is a job for all of us and if we all do our individual part, then success can be assured.

H. M. "Monk" Clement is a man of many talents. In addition to his position as secretary of the Cole Chemical Company in St. Louis, Missouri; his many civic and business activities, he has found time to paint. And paint he has. Mr. Clement has already held one "one man" art show in St. Louis and is preparing to exhibit again. This time it will be at Des peres, Missouri in the L'Atelier Gallery, April 4-18. The best of good wishes to you in your new hobby.

Dr. Uehling to do Research

Dr. Barbara Uehling Professor of psychology at Oglethorpe has received a three year post doctoral grant from the United States Department of Health, Education and Welfare. She will do research in the field of physiological psychology with Dr. Walter Isaac of Emory University in Atlanta. This is concerned with relating external, observable behavior to internal functions and brain processes.

Miss Eleanore MacKenzie, a teacher at John Carney School, was recently elected vice president of the Fifth District of Classroom Teachers of the Georgia Education Association (GEA)

Miss MacKenzie attended North Fulton High School and received her AB degree from Oglethorpe University in 1959. She began teaching in the John Carney School in September 1959 and has been chairman of the primary school there for three years.

She is a member of the GEA, Atlanta Teachers Association, the National Educational Association.

In 1960-61, Miss MacKenzie was a delegate to the GEA. In 1962 and 63 she was a delegate from Atlanta to the Association for Childhood Educational International.

She is presently ATA director at the John Carney School and is serving as vice president of the primary division of ACE.

Oglethorpe Sports

Although the Stormy Petrels of Oglethorpe have little worry of finishing this season with a winning record, nevertheless, will have great difficulty in finishing with a 20 win season as the past several years have been. At this point in the season, the team has proved to be one that seems to lack a steadiness and stableness in its play. On occasion everything has clicked to perfection. Yet, at other times erratic is the word to use in describing the team as they threw the ball away, played lax defense and generally looked bad.

With all this has been added the difficulty of injuries to key members of the team. Junior guard Ray Thomas, a starter and key man from last year's champion team, has been laid up several times and at present is out because of a bad leg. Billy Parker, who holds the Oglethorpe modern record for rebounds in a single game, has likewise been out on a couple of occasions. Walker Heard, 6-7 sophomore center, has been out once because of a bad elbow. Without making excuses, we can readily see the difference that this has made in the team.

Yet with many difficulties, the team has played a fine year. They have come through with key wins at times and have played the brand of basketball that Oglethorpe is famous for. Since the last printing of this paper, the team has played 19 games, winning 11 of these to raise their season's record to 13 wins and 9 loses.

After their win over Troy State of Alabama in early December, the team played host to a very strong AAU team from the Phillips 66 Oil Company. The Phillips team included several former college All-Americans including Jerry Shipp. Coach Pinholster coached Shipp last year in the Pan American games and labeled him "the finest shooter I have ever seen." This particular game turned out to be one of the slowest of the season and very possibly in Petrel modern history. The home team finally bowed by a score of 32-22. The game was dominated by holding tactics on the part of both teams.

The big game of the early part of the season came with the first meeting of the year with rival Georgia Southern. This year's meeting was particularly significant since it marked the beginning of a rivalry for the Georgia Small College Cup. This is a trophy which will be given to the winner of each successive Oglethorpe-Southern game. The winner of each game will keep the cup until the next encounter when the winner will take the cup home with them.

This year the Petrels were fired up for the first win and were able to take it with a 76-60 win over the Eagles from Statesboro. The game was by no means an easy one, however, as no Southern game ever is. The winning margin is no indication of how the teams battled out on even terms most of the game. It appeared that the Southern team was not quite on its best game as evidenced by the low 31.9% that the team shot from the field. This is quite low for Coach J. B. Scarce's Eagles, even with a tight Petrel defense on their backs. The Petrels were led by Billy Parker with 21 points and hit on a phenomenal 85.7% from the field.

The next encounter for Oglethorpe was in their traditional Invitational Tournament, held December 20 and 21 at the Field House. Mississippi College, David Lipscomb College, and Sewanee College were the participating schools along with Oglethorpe.

In their first game with Sewanee, the Petrels were pressed all the way before they pulled away to a 60-58 win at the end. In the other opening game, Mississippi fought a hard pitched battle with David Lipscomb to finally salvage the game 59-57.

This left the Petrels to face Mississippi in the championship game. The game was played at 1:30 in the afternoon to allow for its being televised. This first game in history that was televised at Oglethorpe unfortunately proved to be one of the least interesting of the season. It soon developed into a slowed down game of the caliber of the Phillips game and dragged to an inevitable end at 31-24 with Oglethorpe winning. The Mississippi, normally a fast breaking team has averaged over 100 points per game in the past several seasons. In the O. U. tournament of two years ago they scored over 100 points in one game. Yet in this encounter, they chose to hold the ball. They did not lose possession of or even take a shot at the basket for the first 13 minutes of the second half. The Petrels, nevertheless ground out a meager win to take the tournament crown for the fourth straight year. Sewanee took the consolation game and third place with a 97-85 win over David Lipscomb.

With little vacation rest, the team journeyed to Lenoir Rhyne, North Carolina for their invitational tourney on December 27-28. After winning their initial game over East Carolina, the Petrels were unable to stop a come-from-behind effort and dropped the championship game in the closing minutes by a 65-61 score. As at other times, the real problem seemed to be in getting rebounds. As the old adage goes, "You can't score without the ball."

Following the tourney, the team journeyed again, this time to Greenville, N. C. to face East Carolina. This second time the Atlanta team was not as hot and lost to the Tarheels 79-67. The apparent trouble came from two factors, East Carolina ball control, and poor free throw shooting for the Petrels.. While having trouble cracking the Pirate's zone, the team hit only 13 of 22 chances at the free throw line, just a little over 50%.

The next encounter was one with the Lima Athletic Club of Peru. This club was the Peru entry in the Olympics and played at Oglethorpe for the second time in three years. O. U. fans remembered the Duarte brothers, Ricardo, Rual, and Enrique who traveled with the team on their last trip. A much improved team took the floor against the Petrels after an exchange of flags from Peru and Dixie by the respective team members. Yet the Spanish speaking team could not cope with the superior experience of the Atlantans. They stuck with the Petrels until into the second half. At this point, they just seemed to run out of gas. The final score was 89-66, Oglethorpe's favor.

One of the worst displays of the season was against Belmont Abbey of North Carolina on January 8. The Petrels could not seem to do anything right. The tarheel team, however, were able to capitalize on some good breaks and turn to win the game. As a team, Oglethorpe hit on a very small 22.8% from the floor as compared with 56% for the Abbeymen. Coach Al McGuire handled his less talented and experienced team with superb craftiness to pull out the win 44-35.

Not to be downed, the team from Atlanta went out to win and came from behind all the way to win over Valdosta State 57-55 in the last minutes of the game. The Petrels scored 6 points in the last 55 seconds, tying the score with just 15 seconds left. Ray Thomas made the key basket as he drove the length of the court for a lay-in. Jimbo Hartlage led the team with his finest night with 23 points.

Going against a tall and strong Chattanooga team on January 15, the Petrels played at their best to win 58-54. Playing under pressure all the way, the Atlanta quintet kept up the pace hitting on 52% from the floor and 77.8% from the charity line to take to victory.

This game was a must-win for the Petrels if they hoped to gain an invitation to the NCAA post season tournament for small colleges as they did last year. The invitation in the southern region is apparently going to one of three schools. Either Chattanooga, East Carolina, or Oglethorpe seem to be the logical choices for the invitation. Our beating Chattanooga would likely put us ahead of them, but we had split our games with East Carolina, one on a neutral court, and one on their court.

The team handled a strong Jacksonville team on January 18 staying ahead the whole way, but finally winning by forfeit rather than points. The Jacksonville five were not hitting at their best and ended the game with only 35.7% from the floor. At the half the score was 45-30 in favor of Oglethorpe. Jacksonville's coach had made repeated verbal comments to the referees about their calls and was obviously upset over the way things were going. In the second half, he was quite upset over a call and sent his team to the dressing room. One of the ref-somewhat erratic, they were still too much experience and talent for the Alabamians. Oglethorpe had trouble stopping the Bernard fast break, but Bill Garrigan again added the spark and the team walked away with a 75-56 win.

Looking objectively at the remainder of the season, post season bids do not look too likely. The Petrels dropped their last three games. Two of these, East Carolina, and Jacksonville were close. The other, against Centenary College of Louisiana, was hardly a contest. The Petrels were no match for the tall talent of the team that defeated Loyola of New Orleans, Mississippi, and Texas Tech.

The East Carolina game was a crucial one, the rubber match which the team lost by a hair, 64-61 on their Homecoming. Against Centenary, the score was 86-63. Two slim sophomores, Barrie Haynie and Larry Shoemaker tore the nets all night, hitting 31 and 25 points respectively. At Jacksonville, the team lost a narrow one 82-79. Sexton again led the way with 23 points and 9 rebounds, but it was not enough.

The Petrels now have four games left on their schedule. Two tough ones away with Chattanooga Southern will be followed by two comparatively easy ones at home with Valdosta State and Piedmont.

All four of these are critical if there is to be any possibility of after season play for the Atlanta team. This is the critical and crucial part of the season when the team needs all the support it can get. We hope to see you at the last two home games. Let's show the team we're proud of all their efforts this year. They've done a fine job.

erees thought that Jacksonville was quitting and declared the game forfeit in favor of Oglethorpe with the score as it was. The team then came back and the coach said he was only showing them plays on the blackboard. But at that point it was too late and the game was over with Oglethorpe winning 61-46.

Keeping up their recent spurt, the Petrels moved to Cullman, Alabama, for a return match with St. Bernard. The team came through once again under pressure, hitting 66% from the field to win 73-68 in a close game. Ray Thomas and Captain Bobby Sexton led the team with 20 points apiece. Guard Bobby Dagleish collected 15 points.

On January 23, the Petrels had little trouble handling a tall but inexperienced team for Florida Presbyterian College. Bill Garrigan, sophomore guard from Pennsylvania took over for injured Ray Thomas and hustled the team to a 71-55 win. Garrigan poured in 16 points, 12 in the first half to put his team in the lead and played an aggressive defense to spark the team to the win.

The journey of the team to Alabama to face Troy State was not as profitable as many would have liked. The Petrels lost by two points in an overtime as Troy guard Tom Whitehurst hit on a last-second jump shot to win the game. Bobby Sexton did his best, collecting 31 points and 12 rebounds to lead both teams, but it wasn't quite enough as the Atlanta team lost 70-68.

Bouncing right back, the team defeated St. Bernard for the second time of the year. Although the team seemed
